Lahore Cantt, Pakistan

Dear Mr. Naqvi,

We would like to take this opportunity to congratulate and commend the American International School System (AISS) on the occasion of opening a new school in Lahore Pakistan.

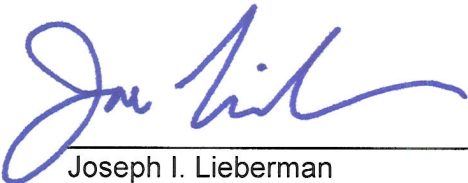

By establishing this school, you recognize that the friendship and support of the Pakistani people toward the United States is mutually beneficial to both countries and that Pakistani youth are poised to play a key role in defining Pakistan's future in the region. Nearly 40 percent of the 165 million people of Pakistan are under the age of fifteen.

The American International School System curriculum will be modeled on curricula in use in the United States. AISS is building bridges for children and exposing them to cutting edge technology and sophisticated curricula. Indeed, graduates from AISS schools will more readily gain access to major higher education institutions around the world.

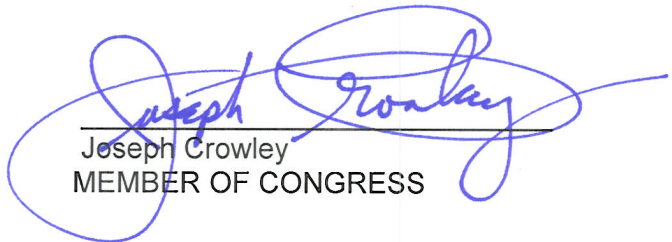

In sum, the AISS school in Lahore will provide an alternative world-class education to Pakistani children and will help them to become more prosperous, secure and democratic, and less likely to support violence or extremism of any kind.

We therefore wish to commend the AISS and the Chief Minister of Punjab, Mr. Chaudhry Pervez Elahi, for the progress being made towards peace and understanding.

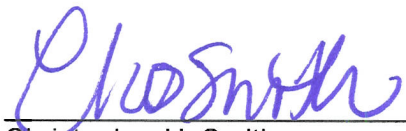

Sincerely,

Joseph I. Lieberman
